

Popular Overlook Gets New Look for 2003

Ridenour Overlook, one of the most popular (and romantic) spots at Raystown Lake, is undergoing a major face-lift this fall.

Due to the efforts of the Pennsylvania Conservation Corps the asphalt surfacing has been removed and will be replaced to reflect a more natural, inviting facade. The original stone wall will remain and a universally accessible walkway will be installed from the parking lot to the top of the overlook for easier access. Native grasses, trees and shrubs outlined by landscape timber will be established where asphalt once lay. Park benches will allow for quiet pondering while visitors admire the scenic vista.

Until the time that the project is complete, the area will remain closed, due to safety reasons. Check back to this site for completion time and the date for reopening.
